DIRECTORATE GENERAL OF NATIONAL EXPORT DEVELOPMENT

Ministry of Trade of The Republic of Indonesia

Ditjen PEN/MJL/XXV/12/2015

Dear Valued Readers,

Clothings is a very important item for a baby who grows rapidly during its early years of development which requires the parents to keep buying new clothes. Baby clothes needs to have a high quality especially material wise because a baby' sking is still sensitive, very thin and prone to allergies. Other than materials, the design of baby clothes must also pay attention various factors such as temperature and weather to keep a baby warm.

With the development in fashion world, baby clothing is also now available in various types, designs, sizes and colors. Parents are no longer only prioritize the comfort of baby clothing but also want their babies to look more modern and wear the latest trend in clothing. Cultural difference also plays a role in choosing baby clothing which led to high demand in the international market.

Indonesia is known as a leading garment producer and is supplying baby clothing to the international market. Indonesia is listed in the Top 10 of baby clothing exporter. With the implementation of the Indonesian National Standard (SNI), Indonesia has the potentials to have a stronger position because the quality of Indonesian baby clothing is guaranteed.

The December edition of Export News discusses various aspects of Indonesian baby clothing from export development to other important information which prospective buyers need to know to conduct business deals. As usual, we also include a list of companies exporting baby clothing.

Thank You

“MINI ME” FASHION FOR ADORABLE BABIES

All families are waiting for a baby to be present among them and in certain groups or ethnics, the baby's sex determines the lineage line of the father or mother. Parents tend to be protective on their babies due to their fragile natures against the outside world. Parents' greatest concerns are clothing and food for their babies.

Hot Issue

Baby clothing is a primary need which is used especially to keep the babies warm. However, currently baby clothing is no longer just a necessity but also the manifestation of the parents' "creativity" who want to dress up their babies so that they can be presented in a more adorable way by following the current trend. Parents have started to pay attention on designs, colors and types of baby clothing in accordance to the event, while keeping in mind the baby's comfort. It is not unusual that parents have prepared baby clothings with various cute colors and designs before the babies are even born.

Indonesian designers are following the trend of baby clothing and fully understand what the parents want by designing various baby clothings with soft colors and gorgeous design. In general, baby clothing is categorized based on sex, age, and usage, whether it is a formal or a relaxed event.

The current trend among parents is "mini me" in which parents want to dress their babies in a similar way with what the parents wear, both color and design. The trend is usually according to the sex a baby girl will dress similar to her mother and a baby boy to his father. However, mothers do more of the "mini me" trend to their daughters as women clothings are far more varied than for men. It is not uncommon for parents to dress their babies with tuxedo and bow tie or mini dress, to name a few examples.

Lower Birth Rate, Bigger Market

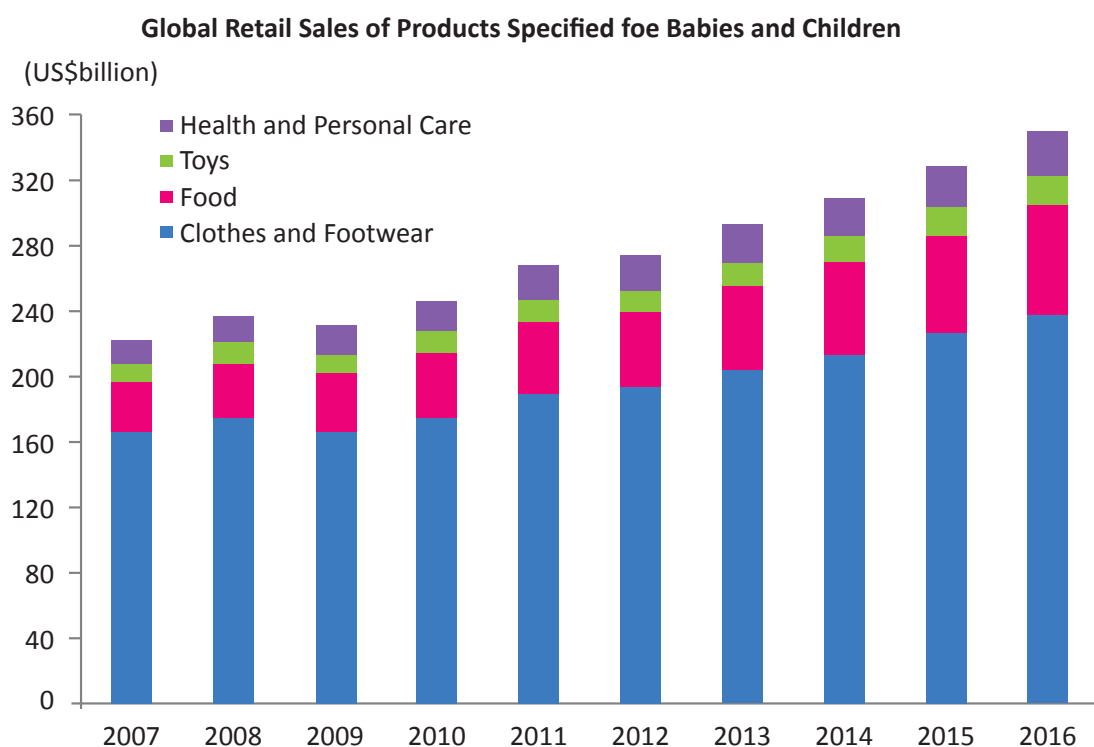

The market size of baby clothing is determined by two things, that is birth rate or the number of babies in a family and parents' purchasing power. In general, the tendency is the higher the birth rate, the bigger the market size of baby clothing because parents will spend more to buy clothes for their babies. The trend is, however, shifting that despite lower birth rate, the market size for baby clothing products is getting even bigger.

Parents with smaller number of babies tend to spend more money in clothes. They want various designs of baby clothing for their children so that the babies look modern and follow the current trend.

Most consumers of baby clothings are focused on the brands of baby clothings they are buying. They believe that well-known brands guarantee the quality of clothes that their babies will wear. Parents surely want the best products for their babies especially when the products have direct contact with the skin of their babies. Parents are looking for these brands as a guarantee that their babies are safe from threats such as irritation caused by low-quality materials and coloring agents which may contain hazardous materials.

Baby clothing industry is predicted to grow further because the market is keep largening and not saturated. In 2017, the market value for children wear is estimated to be US$173.6 billion. Other than not being saturated, the market is also not affected by global financial crisis or a country's weakened economy. Although the fashion world is very dynamic, baby clothing is not easily out-dated or become out of fashion because this product is bought out of necessity and not mere on desire. The following is the growth forecast for baby clothing market as published by Euromonitor International:
